Designed in Lagos East

In 2021, the founding team and Co-creation Hub consulted residents about the training they wanted. Their responses informed five pilots for entrepreneurs, teachers, students and aspiring technology professionals. In 2022 the programmes began in a temporary facility. [1]

A first graduation for entrepreneurs

For the 47 people enrolled in Business 101, the pilot ended with a practical test: presenting their work at a demo day. The June graduation account records 41 completions and grant support for business start-ups at the event. The completion rate for this class was 87%, rounded to the nearest whole percentage point. [2]

Teachers take inquiry into the classroom

A separate 12-week fellowship brought STEM and non-STEM teachers together from Lagos Education Districts 2 and 3. In August, 57 teachers received fellowships after studying inquiry-based learning and the use of technology in teaching. [3]

Reading the figures

The 150 places cover the opening intake across all five pilots. The 47 enrolments and 41 completions belong to one class within the pilot. The August teacher count belongs to a separately reported event. Adding these figures would count people at different stages.
